
Contact your local ombudsman

The long-term care ombudsman is here to advocate for the health, safety, welfare and rights of residents residing in Nursing Homes and Assisted Livings.

If you are feeling alone and wondering if this will ever end, just know you're not the only one trying to stay on top of the waves of change. There are 382 long term care facilities in the state of Idaho, and they are all doing things a bit differently. Is it a wonder that it can seem over whelming during challenging times like these?

To connect with others who are in your same circumstance contact the ombudsman and they will assist you in creating a Family Council in your loved one's facility.

A family council consists of supportive individuals who want to be a part of positive change.
